THIS IS A KINDER WAY TO STAY OLDER LONGER this is a kinder way to stay older longer The skin and organs of children are as unique as their personalities. Because they are so different from adults, the cosmetics industry treats them as a different marketplace. In fact, the cosmetics industry would love for young people to only buy products that are in their 10-year or 20-year age range. Their thinking is, if they are special and different in this area, perhaps, their other area of life is also special and different. In fact, the opposite is true. Being different in the skin care and cosmetics area can lead to youthful skin and the body parts that are older. Yet, young people are not in the least interested in products for mature skin. The younger they are, the more interested they are in products that take care of all areas of their body. When teenagers are young and want to stay in touch with their younger self, they want to have a healthy, glowing skin. They want products that give them special, youthful skin even as they start experiencing the effects of aging. This is an amazing connection that young people will embrace. While young adults want to stay young, young kids believe that their parents are old and wrinkled. It is a natural connection that kids make when they see their parents. We applaud the cosmetics industry for realizing this connection and offering unique products that their young customers will love. Young girls want to see their face that is often their first feature people see. They want to have a face that doesn't look old or wear a full face of makeup. Younger women want to have a youthful complexion that attracts attention away from the face. Young skin needs products that help it stay strong and healthy. Over the course of a young person's life, they may have to fight acne, deal with acne bff6bb2d33
